

Studia Neoaristotelica

A Journal of Analytical Scholasticism

IS NOW COMPLETELY IN ENGLISH!

Studia Neoaristotelica – A Journal of Analytical Scholasticism is a peer-reviewed, scholarly journal devoted to the promotion of Aristotelian philosophy broadly conceived, drawing especially on the rich legacy of the scholastic tradition and on contemporary analytical metaphysics. A special emphasis is placed on the most advanced forms of scholastic thought, hitherto virtually unexplored, which emerged during the Renaissance and Baroque periods. Our vision is to work toward a contemporary philosophical synthesis of analytic and scholastic methods and ideas. We are interested not only in papers that attempt to advance this vision, but also in papers that are critical of it.

The journal was founded in 2004 by Prof. Stanislav Sousedík and is published by Ontos Verlag, Germany, in cooperation with the University of South Bohemia in České Budějovice, Czech Republic. It is governed by an international editorial board, and indexed by Philosophy Research Index, ERIH, and Ulrich. The electronic version of the journal is distributed also by the Philosophy Documentation Center.
